The Panet Fitness parking lot on Boston Street in Lynn was underwater Sunday after 8 inches of rain soaked the city.

Sunday's rainfall floods Lynn

By John Lynds

Anyone who doubts or denies that climate change is a serious issue that needs to be addressed sooner rather than later needs to look no further than Sunday's biblical rainfall that dumped a whopping 8 inches of rain in Lynn and flooded streets and homes.

These rainfall events that were only supposed to happen every '100 years,' are now occurring more frequently.

This was the second time that Lynn was smacked with a slow moving storm. Last year's September 30 storm dumped over four inches on the city in less than an hour, overwhelming storm drains and low-lying areas.

The same people affected last year once again found themselves cleaning out basements, accessing damage and praying something is done to address the problem.

"Sunday's historic and unpredictable rainfall-eight inches within two hours-had substantial impact across the City of Lynn," said Mayor Thomas McGee. "My team and I have been in communication with Governor Charlie Baker and his administration, Congressman Seth Moulton, and the State Delegation regarding resources and assistance in the aftermath of this unprecedented storm."

McGee said his Administration is exploring financial relief options through Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), which requires significant damage thresholds to be met by public infrastructure, private businesses and private homeowners.

"We ask that business owners and residents take pictures and submit them along with a detailed inventory of material, structural, and revenue losses," said the Mayor. "Please refer to the City of Lynn website <http://www.ci.lynn.ma.us/> starting tomorrow through August 28, for specific submission information.

Lynn children rest easy thanks to a gift from the Patriots and Bob's Discount Furniture

By Cary Shuman

The New England Patriots teamed up with Bob's Discount Furniture and A Bed for Every Child to provides beds for 200 Lynn children at a spectacular event held Monday at Gillette Stadium in Foxboro.

Robert Kraft, CEO of the New England Patriots, and Mike Skirvin, president of Bob's Discount Furniture, were on hand to personally present each child with a Bob O Pedic Patriots-themed bed with their name on it, along with new Patriots bedding and pajamas donated by the Pajama Program.

In addition to meeting successful business leaders Kraft and Skirvin, the Lynn group interacted with Patriots players Devin McCourty, Jason McCourty, James White, and Kyle Van Noy, members of the Patriots cheerleading team, Pats' mascot, Pat Patriot, all of whom obliged with photos and autographs.

DEMENTIA-REPORTING BILL WILL HELP US ALL

Gov. Charlie Baker signed into law a landmark bill this past week that has been hailed as a first-in-the-nation effort to require that medical professionals undergo training in the diagnosis, treatment, and care of patients with Alzheimer's and other forms of dementia.

The legislation also requires physicians who have diagnosed Alzheimer's in a patient to inform a family member or legal representative about the diagnosis and mandates that all hospitals, no later than October 1, 2021, develop and put into practice a plan for recognizing and managing patients with dementia.

In some respects, the legislation almost mimics the "mandatory reporter" requirements of suspected child abuse for health and other caregivers. That such a bill in the area of suspected dementia is necessary no doubt comes as a surprise to most of us, who always assumed that professional caregivers would have been on top of such issues when dealing with a patient, similar to how they address patients who demonstrate symptoms of any other physical ailment.

But assessing whether a patient is showing signs of dementia -- of which Alzheimer's is just one aspect -- apparently is not all that simple. In addition, even if health care professionals suspect the presence of dementia, the combination of privacy laws, a lack of training, and a desire not to get involved, so to speak, may result in the avoidance of presenting family members with their suspicions.

However, with the Baby Boomers rapidly aging and the number of Americans being diagnosed with dementia-related diseases increasing exponentially, it is imperative that both families and individuals be made aware of a diagnosis of dementia as soon as possible.

Although there presently are no cures for Alzheimer's and other dementia-related diseases, the sooner that individuals and family members become aware of a diagnosis, the sooner they can put into place a plan that will address the issues that such patients are facing.

Given the escalating costs of providing health care for older Americans, with implications for our society and our economy, developing an early-response plan to this particularly-insidious disease will benefit all of us in the long run.

Healthcare for All

By Congressman Michael E. Capuano

There are many opinions on the types of healthcare Americans should have access to. Republicans in Congress believe we're all on our own. I believe we're all in this together. And I firmly believe that healthcare is a right, not a privilege. That's why I support single-payer healthcare: we need Medicare for all, and we need it now.

Across our district, I've seen how important having health insurance is to thousands of people with preexisting conditions. I've seen how thankful so many are for the reforms of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) that opened the door to coverage for millions for the very first time. And I've seen how much working families rely on our doctors, our hospitals, and our community health centers every day. That's why I've worked so hard to bring home funding for programs like the Boston Public Health Commission's REACH initiative that supports health education and preventive screenings. That's why I co-founded the Community Health Centers Caucus in Congress to further support these centers and the work they do through the ACA. I've made community health centers a priority, working to secure funding so they could expand and increase services.

Today, all of that the progress is under attack. The ACA is being ambushed like never before. Republicans have tried to repeal it. The Justice Department refuses to defend it in court. And Donald Trump continues to play games and try to sabotage Americans' healthcare rather than work to improve it.

Think about all we would lose if Donald Trump and the Republicans got their way. We'd go back to an America in which someone could be denied coverage they needed because of a preexisting condition, or where those who could not afford coverage were told they had to get by on their own. That is unacceptable. It would put the health of millions in jeopardy. And I am determined to fight those efforts every step of the way.

But we can go further than just defending the progress we've already made. It's important to think about what comes next. And the next logical step to getting our healthcare system where it needs to be so every American has affordable, quality health care is through Medicare for all. I am a longtime supporter of Medicare for all and have been fighting for it in Congress. With resolve and commitment, I know we can make this important progress.

Every American deserves healthcare. It's a basic human right. And as soon as Democrats take back Congress, I know we will be on our way to making it a reality. But I'm not giving up the fight for healthy communities here at home while we wait. I will not rest until we make sure that everyone in our neighborhoods has access to care, because we can't just say that everyone has a right to health care -- we need to take action to make sure that they have access to affordable care.

Together, we can stand up to fight for the ACA and push for Medicare for all. It's up to us to make sure our values are backed up by action. I'm not going to stop fighting for a healthcare system that is affordable, high quality, and universal. I hope you'll join me in that fight.

The City will subsequently apply to FEMA for consideration to be declared a disaster area.”

McGee and the city have set up a Dumpster Day for residents to dispose of damaged bulky items from Sunday's storm. Residents can dispose of these items on Saturday, August 18 at the Covanta Transfer Station, which is located at 247 Commercial Street, directly across the street from the Lynn DPW from 8 a.m.-12 noon.

The City has also arranged with Waste Management for curbside pickup of damaged bulky items on their normally scheduled recycling day over the next two weeks from Monday, August 20, to Friday, August 31.

McGee said both options are free of charge for residents for the designated dates only. Acceptable items include furniture, mattresses, carpeting rolled in bundles not exceeding four-feet in length, and water damaged household goods in plastic trash bags.

However, refrigerators, computers, freezers, washers, dryers, dishwashers, stoves, water heaters, boilers, air conditioners and dehumidifiers will not be accepted nor will construction and demolition debris, including sheetrock, lumber, doors and windows, hazardous waste, paint and solvents.

“As we continue to experience increasing amounts of intense storms due to global warming, like the one Sunday, it is imperative that we take proactive steps to remediate their effects,” said McGee. “My administration applied for and has been awarded a grant by the Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs through the Municipal Vulnerability Preparedness Planning Grant Program.”

McGee said this process would target Lynn's coastal resiliency plans and position the City to be eligible for future project implementation funding.

“Lynn Water and Sewer is in the design phase of their combined sewer overflows (CSO) project and expect work to begin next year,” he said. “Finally, we are looking into conducting a city-wide flood-risk management assessment and develop investment strategies to prevent this from happening in the future.”

At Large City Councilor Brian LaPierre said he has been proud to see city officials, residents and neighbors working together to help one another clean up after the storm.

“Once again, Lynn and its residents have shown me that in the most trying times of adversity, Lynners rise to the occasion,” said LaPierre. “This has never been more true than how folks handled the record amount of rainfall during Sunday mornings storm event. I think what impressed me most are how emergency personnel including but not limited to police, fire, EMT responders, DPW, Lynn Water and Sewer personnel handled and helped residents across the city deal with this catastrophic flooding disaster. Neighbors came out to assist other neighbors and elected officials from all levels of government did whatever they could to offer some small relief to those suffering the most.”

LaPierre added that in the days ahead city officials are going to have to collectively put their heads together and work as a team to ensure that flood prone areas are addressed.

“We must ensure we learn from this experience and find ways to remedy our aging infrastructure, make improvements to our drain system, when applicable and invest in the areas that are most impacted from the downtown to West Lynn, from Meadow Court to the Lynnway,” said LaPierre. “We need to review current procedures and continue to find ways to communicate effectively in times of high alert. I applaud this past operation for so many reasons and look now to how we best serve residents in the aftermath of such a horrific span of a few hours in time.”

At-Large City Councilor Brian Field said the damage from Sunday's storm was widespread but the places that flooded were a bit of a surprise.

“The flooding and damage done by Sunday's storm is widespread and it was not only the areas that have been prone to flooding in the past,” said Field. “Every area and neighborhood in the city had some damage. Some had entire yards were washed away because retaining walls in their yard failed or collapsed.”

Field added that he hopes the state and federal government recognizes the hardship of residents here, many of whom were just getting back on their feet after last year's flood event.

“I am hoping the state and federal government recognize this hardship and the health effects associated with this matter,” said Field. “That is short term. Long term, however, I hope to have the studies completed and a long term solution for the areas in downtown and West Lynn areas that are constantly dealing with flooding.”

Lynn Babe Ruth 16-18 All-Stars return home with disappointment

By Jonathan Chang

After a week in Jamestown, N.Y., the Lynn Babe Ruth 16-18-year-old All-Stars finally returned home. Close games and a 1-3 record in pool play left a lot to be desired, but a World Series appearance for such a young team is already creating an expectation for the future.

“Our kids really showed out there that they can compete at the high level, at the national level, against competition like that,” said Lynn coach Al Donovan. “... We were the youngest team out there on top of it.”

Although their 1-3 record might not show it, the Lynn All-Stars weren't too far off from reaching the playoffs. Donovan said the first game, the 5-4 loss against the Fairfax, Va. team particularly stands out. The Lynners put up a 4-0 lead in the top of the third before allowing five runs.

Had they won the game, Lynn could have made the bracket, Donovan said.

A 2-1 loss against the Charleston, Mo. team also indicated Lynn's potential, as Charleston moved onto win the 2018 Babe Ruth 16-18 World Series.

“To the kids' credit, they left everything on the field, and they played a great game,” Donovan said. “Defensively, I couldn't ask more from Devin Curley. ... He pitched his heart out, gave us a lot of opportunities to win the game, but we just couldn't push another one to put us on the board.”

Lynn's only win game against the host Jamestown—and in a dominant fashion: 8-3.

While the team's athletic abilities have impressed him, Donovan added that his team's character has done just the same. “They work hard, and they're not just really hard workers on the ball field, but they're good character kids [even off the field],” he said. “They do the right things, and they're always doing well.”

Donovan said the future will be bright for the group of athletes, some of whom will depart to college, while others will return next year. While it is uncertain exactly who will return, Donovan said that he and Coach Leon Elwell will try to put back the nucleus of the team.

“We feel that if we have the right guys on board and practice and work hard at it, that we will give ourselves a shot,” Donovan said.

Donovan noted the coaching staff's gratitude to the local businesses and people who supported the team. He said their support allowed the trip to be enjoyable and safe. He noted special thanks to Katie Burt, who set up the team's GoFundMe page.

LUNA SWEETS RIBBON CUTTING CEREMONY

When one tastes a cake or cupcake, you will know this is the place to order your pastries for special occasions. Custom cakes for weddings, birthdays, table sweets, and many more delicious pleasures are made with pride, quality, and beauty.

Patricia "Patty" Francis, Executive Baker and CEO of Luna Sweets, said, "Most of my business is through word of mouth. I started the business in 2013, working out of a rental kitchen. I decided that I wanted my own space to bake and to develop the business. The Lydia Pinkham Building was a perfect fit, and I applied for a micro-loan with the EDIC. I was able to move in two months ago, and it has been great."

Patty Francis dreamed of having her own business. She really enjoys baking and likes being an entrepreneur. Patty is a gifted and talented baker who has received the Couple Choice Award and the Expertise Award for the best wedding cake. Her baking ability is amazing along with her exceptional service.

Greater Lynn Senior Services receives $2,500 from Meals on Wheels America to support clients and their pets

Greater Lynn Senior Services is proud to announce that it has received a $2,500 grant from Meals on Wheels America to support its client pet support program. Funding will be used to provide food for the pets of area clients, which can often be a financial and physical challenge for clients to do so on their own.

"Pets can help alleviate issues common among seniors such as social isolation and depression," said Ben Graff, Nutrition Program Manager. "We are thrilled to have the opportunity to assist our elders in keeping both their pets and their independence."

In total, Meals on Wheels America has granted over $200,000 to nearly 100 local Meals on Wheels programs through the Meals on Wheels Loves Pets initiative this year. Funding is made possible in part through a donation from the former Banfield Charitable Trust. To date, the grant program has distributed more than $2.4 million in funding and pet food donations.

"While pets are invaluable companions to homebound seniors, positively impacting their health and well-being, they can also be a challenge to care for alone," said Meals on Wheels America President and CEO Ellie Hollander. "The Meals on Wheels Loves Pets program enables Greater Lynn Senior Services to provide pet food and other necessary services to ease some of that burden and make it possible for local seniors and their beloved pets to stay together."

The $2,500 grant translates to roughly 10,000 additional meals that will be provided to pets living with seniors.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE REGION

CHELSEA TO HOLD FOOD TRUCK FESTIVAL

CHELSEA – What better way to introduce the new ordinance allowing food trucks in the city than with a Chelsea Food Truck Festival?

That's the path that City Solicitor Cheryl Watson Fisher and City Hall summer intern Katherine Cabral are taking with the city's first food truck festival that will be held on Aug. 14-16 (Tuesday through Thursday from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.) at the Williams Middle School parking lot at the corner of Arlington and Fifth streets.

Watson Fisher, head of the Law Department for the city and a graduate of one of the nation's finest law schools (Boston College), is the chief organizer, while Cabral, a CHS graduate and student at Bates College, is in charge of marketing for the organizing team.

Watson Fisher, who also supervises licenses in Chelsea, drafted the food-truck ordinance, which took one year to develop and gain approval.

"We're trying with this festival to show that there is a customer base and market for food trucks in Chelsea," said Watson Fisher. "We also want to get the food trucks here as an event for employees of City Hall. The Williams School is a good location for City Hall employees and other people who also work in the city during the day."

Several employees from city departments, including licensing, law, DPW, inspectional services, schools, city manager's office, will be in attendance and interact with the community at the festival.

Representatives from the National Institute of Justice will be conducting a survey at the festival. The Hubcats, which promotes the well-being of cats, will have an information table. The Archery, Limebikes, and Carter Park Crossfit are among the local businesses participating in the festival. There will be music and a possible appearance of the Chelsea Police "Copsicle" truck.

Attendees will have a wide of variety foods available for purchase, according to Watson Fisher.

"We'll have a Chilean food truck, a Vietnamese food truck, a gluten-free, vegan truck, an American barbecue truck, as well as tacos, sausages, hot dogs, and hamburgers, and desserts," said Watson Fisher.

Cabral said the festival will help determine which type of food trucks might be popular if they were stationed here on a daily basis.

"We're bringing in a big variety of food trucks to see what the people want going forward and whether the food truck operators are interested in collaborating with Chelsea," said Cabral.

Though Watson Fisher is ready to review applications for food truck licenses and to potentially grant them, there are no food trucks currently operating in the city.

"We have allowed food trucks at certain events," said Watson Fisher. "But at this point there are no food trucks operating in the city."

Cabral believes the festival will ignite an interest in food trucks wanting to set up shop in the city.

"We really do want this event to be a springboard for food trucks to come to Chelsea and to expose our dayworkers to see this an opportunity to try new things, so we're super excited to hold such a multi-faceted event in our city," said Cabral.

MARIJUANA DISPENSARY COULD BE AT PARKWAY PLAZA LOCATION

CHELSEA – The Western Front company is proposing to locate a medical marijuana dispensary and a marijuana industry training program at the Parkway Plaza off of Webster Street.

A public meeting to hear and discuss the proposal will be held at City Hall tonight, Aug. 9, at 6 p.m.

Attorney Tim Flaherty said that Western Front is led by Marvin E. Gilmore Jr., a World War II veteran who has spent most of his life helping low-income people get into profitable industries so that they could move into the middle class.

Flaherty said the state Cannabis Control Commission (CCC) has already certified Western Front as an Economic Empowerment proposal, which makes it unique compared to traditional proposals. It also puts it somewhat on the fast-track in the state process. Chelsea is designated as a community where Economic Empowerment proposals are allowed due to what is termed an inequitable enforcement of drug laws regarding marijuana in the past.

Flaherty said to be certified, a proposal has to meet three of six criteria, and Western Front met all six.

"This is a very appropriate site we think for this use and complies with zoning in Chelsea," said Flaherty. "What we will do with the space is we will operate a dispensary on one side and we will operate the other side as a workforce training space. Our business model is to have Chelsea residents and have people previously impacted by the War on Drugs benefitting from this proposal. There are certain types of offenses that disqualify people from being hired by Western Front, but a conviction for possession of marijuana would not prohibit them."

The proposal at the moment is for a medical marijuana dispensary to operate, but Flaherty said they would like to become a recreational facility if they can get the financing and approvals. For now, though, they will be apply for medical.

The workforce training center will exist to educate Chelsea residents about how to get involved and qualified to work in the burgeoning marijuana industry.

The proposal, Flaherty stressed, is unique in that it is meant to benefit people in Chelsea that have been disproportionately harmed by the War on Drugs in the past.

He said they haven't signed a Host Community Agreement with the City yet, but he said a standard condition is a 3 percent impact fee. Another 3 percent fee would be imposed as a local sales tax option. Other mitigation could come if the proposal is approved.

Flaherty said they will have 24/7 video and audio surveillance, with steel doors and a security guard on site.

After the community meeting, if there is not major opposition, the proposal would move to a full application with the state. If approved there, the application would come back to the Chelsea Planning Board for a Special Permit.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES TRAFFIC CONGESTION

REVERE – The City Council discussed the traffic congestion that residents encountered during the International Sand Sculpting Festival that attracted between 700,000-800,000 people to Revere Beach.

The councilors took on the issue after Councillor-at-Large George Rotondo made a motion that "Mayor Brian Arrigo, Fire

Lynn basketball players (above) competed against other teams from the area in the Fourth Annual Let It Fly Classic Saturday at the Jordan Boys and Girls Club in Chelsea.

Chief Christopher Bright, and Police Chief James Guido meet in executive session to speak about the security profile at the very successful Sand Castle event."

Rotondo said the crowds have grown significantly in recent years and he would like to meet with public safety officials to plan for next year's festival.

Guido said he was aware of the heavy traffic throughout the city as people tried to get to Revere Beach by car, especially on the Saturday (July 21) of the festival "I'm well aware what went on Saturday – I sat in the traffic myself," said Guido.

The chief said the event has grown to rival the Fourth of the July celebration on the Esplanade in terms of the tremendous crowds attending the event. He said the sandsculpting festival will require a larger police presence in the city to help with traffic and safety.

"We're probably going to have to do something that's never been done before – we're going to have to order in all off-duty personnel to come to work for this event," said Guido. "We'll cover every intersection and traffic location. It won't be perfect, but it will at least be better than what happened on Saturday."

Guido said while the fireworks spectacular on the Esplanade has more than 600 police officers present, "We've run the sand castle event for the past 15 years with maybe 30-40 police officers. I think we've done a really good job but it's come to the point where we need to a better job. I look forward working on the solutions."

Rotondo said he fully agreed with Guido's comments, adding that he hoped the city could gain "national event" status that might result in federal or state money to help with funding for security for the festival. He suggested that the city set up satellite parking lots at such locations as the schools, Suffolk Downs, Wonderland, and NECCO, where shuttle buses would be available to transport people to the festival.

"Because this event has become bigger than what it was, we need to plan accordingly," said Rotondo.

Councillor Patrick Keefe conceded while there were some traffic jams, the sandsculpting festival was "an unbelievable success and a phenomenal event."

"I want to commend all the people who put this event together," said Keefe. "I'm already looking forward to next year's event."

Councillor Arthur Guinasso said it was a very successful event. "But the most primary concern of all should be public safety," said Guinasso. "God forbid that fire apparatus, police personnel, or an ambulance has to get to a location. You couldn't get anywhere. This event has gone to great proportions. I'm so happy to hear the the police chief say we do need additional personnel. We have a few months to work on this."

Councillor Ira Novoselsky also spoke about the gridlock on the Saturday of the festival. "But I just don't want it to take anything away from the event and everything that goes with it. It was an outstanding day and it's an international event. You have people coming in from all over the world to see Revere, Massachusetts. We can handle it and I have faith in our police department and our state police.”

Councillor President Jessica Giannino said the matter will be referred to the public safety subcommittee for further review.

FIRE DEPARTMENT RECEIVES GRANT

REVERE – Mayor Brian M. Arrigo announced that the Revere Fire Department has been awarded a $1.1 Million SAFER Grant by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. The Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response Grant will help the fire department increase its compliment from 102 to 106 fire fighters in the current fiscal year.

“This is tremendous news,” said Mayor Brian M. Arrigo. “We made it a priority in crafting the municipal budget to strengthen public safety at all levels, and this grant bodes well for the fire department. This funding will help us continue to decrease the number of days that fire apparatus is out of service due to staffing issues.”

Mayor Arrigo cited fire department statistics that enumerate the downward trend of out-of-service days to a four-year low of 380 in 2017, a better than 50 per cent improvement from the earlier years. The Mayor envisions a day soon where so-called “brown-outs” will be at a minimum. “We’re hoping that toward the end of 2019, the Department will be at full compliment, and manpower shortages will no longer be a reason that apparatus will be out of service. Brown-outs will be much more manageable as they will relate to training or apparatus maintenance, but not manpower. This grant goes a long way toward helping us fulfill that goal.”

Fire Chief Chris Bright echoed the Mayor’s sentiments. “We are currently budgeted for 106 fire-fighter positions, but long-term injuries and three pending retirements make this Grant especially important. In September we’re hiring 7 new fire fighters, we’ve got seven more starting the fire academy in October and they should be ready for deployment by December. Our goal is to make ‘brown-outs’ a rarity.”

Mayor Arrigo has his sights set on the full 106 fire-fighter force. “The City’s Human Resources department is working now with the fire department to re-fill the reserve list and position us to reach the 106 figure. That’s our goal, and we fully aim to accomplish that in the foreseeable future.”

“It’s a process,” said Chief Bright. “There is a lag time in the hiring as we get candidates onto the reserve list, and then we need to get them into slots at the fire academy for training before they are ready for active fire duty.”

The Homeland Security SAFER Grant program was created to give fire departments support in meeting community needs. “We are fortunate that our Congressional delegation, including Senators Ed Markey and Elizabeth Warren and Congresswoman Katherine Clark, appreciate the financial burdens that modern-day public safety imposes on communities. Equipment is expensive, manpower is expensive, and communities strive to meet their needs. Federal assistance such as the SAFER Grant program is invaluable.”

Chief Bright praised the members of his staff that prepared the detailed SAFER Grant application. “They deserve a ‘shout out’” said the Chief, who singled out fire Captain Mike Bowden, his Administrative Assistant Paula Garcia, and Sarah White, statistician with the Metro North Regional Emergency Communications Center. “As you can imagine, the work in filling out the Grant application requires detail and documented support, and I can’t say enough about our team’s effort. That’s the reason for our success.”

As the City continues to grow, Mayor Arrigo has persisted in his call for public safety enhancements. “I share Chief Bright’s hope that the current feasibility study will clear the way for the City to bond for the demolition and reconstruction of the Alden A. Mills Fire Station in the Point of Pines. Looking toward the future, the Revere will continue to seek the monies available in federal staffing grants. We are blessed in Revere with dedicated and outstanding fire department geared for the demands of our growing city. When public safety is a priority, and we can meet our expectations in public safety, then every resident of our City benefits.”

DEBATES PLANNED IN EVERETT

EVERETT – Two major debates this month, on Aug. 14 and Aug. 20, will feature all three state representative candidates on the Sept. 4 ballot, and the Aug. 20 debate will also feature both Congressional candidates as well.

First, the Everett Democratic City Committee will host a debate for state representative candidates on Tuesday, Aug. 14, and Candidates Gerly Adrien and Steve ‘Stat’ Smith will be joined by State Rep. Joe McGonagle for the first time. Rep. McGonagle was unable to attend previous debates.

The Everett Democratic City Committee will present the debate, and it will be moderated by Sue Flicop of the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts, Newton Chapter.

The debate will be held at the Parlin Memorial Library beginning at 6:30 p.m. The public is invited and encouraged to attend what promises to be a lively and informative event.

•Then, on Aug. 20, from 6-8 p.m., a number of community-based organizations from Everett and Chelsea will sponsor a state representative debate and a 7th Congressional debate in the same night.

The event will take place in Everett at the Pioneer Charter School of Science, downstairs hall, 51 Summer St.

That debate will potentially feature all three state representative candidates – including Adrien, Smith and Rep. McGonagle. That debate will also potentially feature Congressman Michael Capuano and Candidate Ayanna Pressley.

All have been invited to participate, but not all have confirmed as of yet.

The overall debate is hosted by Everett’s La Comunidad, Inc. and Chelsea’s GreenRoots.

Co-Sponsors include City Life/Vida Urbana, Everett Community Growers, Everett Safe & Welcoming Coalition, MA TPS Committee, MassVOTE, Mystic River Watershed Association, OneEverett, and Our Revolution Everett.

Participants will hear from the candidates on issues such as immigration, environmental justice, housing, education, youth opportunities, and good jobs. Additionally, the forum will follow a “round robin” format for residents to have the opportunity to participate in a meaningful exchange with the candidates.

local delegation, summed up the Bed-Zone Bash event perfectly, calling it “an awesome overall experience.”

“The children are so excited to be a part of this great event,” said Rowe. “They get to come to Gillette Stadium, they get a free bed and all the swag (Patriots souvenirs) that goes with it, they get to meet the players – even just getting to see Mr. Kraft is really an awesome experience. They’re loving it. They have huge smiles all over their faces. I don’t think they expected all of this. It’s really great that the Lynn Housing Authority could hook up with the Homeless Coalition, the Patriots Foundation, and Bob’s Discount Furniture, to be able to give 200 beds to Lynn kids. This is really huge for the kids and their families.”

Robyn Frost, of the Mass. Coalition for the Homeless A Bed For Every Child initiative that is based in Lynn, said Bob’s Discount Furniture and the Patriots Foundation invited the Coalition and the Lynn children to participate in the event.

The delivery of the new beds to the Lynn families will start next week.

“We get about 200 referrals a month from kids growing up in poverty who need a bed,” said Frost. “We partner with the Lynn public schools. Our whole motivation is to get as many new beds out to kids living in poverty as possible, so they can get a good night’s sleep and be able to concentrate and go to school. It’s huge that the Patriots are hosting this event. It’s a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for these kids and Bob’s Discount Furniture is amazing.”

Lynn youths meet New England Patriots cheerleader Morgan Dzicek at the event at Gillette Stadium.

GLSS wellness festival set for Sept. 6

Wellness Pathways at Greater Lynn Senior Services (GLSS) is hosting its second annual Wellness Festival, "Building Bridges to Healthier Communities," at the Lynn Museum on Thursday, September 6, 2018, from 11:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. The event is free, open to the public, and being held in partnership with Lynn Museum/Lynn Arts and the Downtown Lynn Cultural District. In addition to providing information about community resources, the Wellness Festival will offer refreshments; raffles; and a number of activities, such as Zumba, chair massage, yoga, financial planning, balance exercises, cognitive games, and much more. Food will be available for purchase.

"We see this as a great opportunity for GLSS and its community partners to affirm our collective commitment to building a culture of wellness in area communities," says Muriel Clement, Wellness Pathways Program Manager. "Wellness Pathways is committed to helping individuals become engaged, educated, and empowered to achieve total health," she noted. "We are looking for sponsors who share our commitment to this mission."

To date, Gold-level sponsors include Tufts Health Plan, United Healthcare, and Community Credit Union, and International

Medical Interpreters of the North Shore. In addition to Gold, Silver, and Bronze levels of sponsorship, in-kind and financial donations, as well as donations for the event's raffle, are welcome. Sponsorship information is available at www.glss.net or by contacting Kelsey Magnuson at kmagnuson@glss.net or calling 781-586-8530. GLSS is a tax-exempt 501(c)(3) organization and all donations are tax deductible.

For more than 10 years, GLSS has been offering evidence-based, healthy living workshops to adults of all ages in Lynn, Lynnfield, Nahant, Saugus, Swampscott in partnership with a number of community organizations. Most Wellness Pathways programs are provided at no cost and help people who are living with chronic conditions and older adults at risk of falls. "By joining us as a sponsor, you can help ensure the vitality of this important programming moving forward," Clement added.

Greater Lynn Senior Services is the nonprofit Aging Services Access Point and Area Agency on Aging serving people age 60 and older and adults living with disabilities in Lynn, Lynnfield, Nahant, Saugus, and Swampscott, with a focus on creating move livable communities for all.

Program Continue for special needs students

By Stacy Director

Over 250 special needs students, ages 3-22, are spending five weeks receiving "direct instruction and related services" based on their individual needs at the Lynn Vocational Tech Institute under the direction of Leanne Palmer, Program Specialist in the Special Education Department.

Students in grades 3-5 spend part of their day reading and exploring books of their own choosing. If needed, an iPad can be used to help the child communicate. In Amanda Lacaillade's pre K classroom, students were working in small groups to help them with letters and sounds. Amanda Kennedy's K-2 students were learning science terms such as flexible, liquid and matter. They were able to repeat the words and give examples of each term. This assists them with their English.

Michelle Steele's class, aged 3-7, was using "weather terms to make a connection to the outside world" in this week's Splash theme of Energize with Exercise. Since some of her students are hearing impaired, sign language is often used along with speech for better communication. Receptive language is the focus.

Students, ages 18-22, are reinforcing the job skills they have been practicing during the school year. In the Life Skills Lab, they have a mock apartment and a mock store along with an office. Interviewing skills are also important. Michael, a student in the program, has used these skills to help him get a job in a local restaurant as a dishwasher. He said, "I want a job and get paid."

In addition to the special needs teachers, there are twenty-seven high school/college students who work at the site for the summer. Daniel Morris, a 2018 graduate of Lynn Classical, has worked in this program for two years. He helps not only in the classroom, but assists with the buses and lunches. He has a "good vibe" working with the students.

Overall, these students are able to reinforce skills they learned during the school year while having fun.

Lynn resident named Chief Development Officer at NBTS

Lynn resident, Lauren Hall, has been named Chief Development Officer at the National Brain Tumor Society (NBTS), headquartered in Newton, MA. In this role, Mrs. Hall will direct NBTS's national fundraising strategy in support of its mission to cure brain tumors.

Mrs. Hall brings nearly two decades of experience at some of the world's leading institutions – including Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and Brigham and Women's Hospital – to her new position at NBTS. She previously served as Assistant Vice President of Development at Brigham and Women's Hospital, where she directed fundraising for the neurosciences and played a key role in launching the Ann Romney Center for Neurologic Diseases. Prior to that, she served as Senior Associate Director, Major Gifts, University of Pennsylvania; Associate Director, Principal & Major Gifts, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute; and Special Projects Coordinator, Office of External Affairs and Coordinator, Women's Leadership Board, Harvard University, JFK School of Government.

She has a Masters in Writing and Literature from the University of Pennsylvania and a BA in English from Ohio Wesleyan University. She has served as a Big Sister for the past 6 years with the Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, and also serves on the Board of Directors at Inward Bound Mindfulness Education, as well as volunteers with the Penn Alumni Interviewer Program. She lives in Lynn with her husband.
